MONTPELIER.

Aged Peddler Was Held Up and Severely Pounded.

Three men held up Jacob Udelsky, a peddler, on Northfield street, near the People's church, at 8:30 Saturday night, and when they found that Jacob had no money, they pounded him severely. Jacob cried out for help and Michael Plannery, hearing the C. Q. D., hastened to the spot, to see three men running away and Jacob reduced to a faint, almost. The peddler, who is advanced in years, was taken back to the house of I. Gould, which he had just left, and the police were called. Chief Duxon and Officer Connolly responded and got a description of the three assailants. They think they know who one of the men may be, and they will continue their investigations further.

Foster and Plannery's Positions.

As is generally known, both Congressmen Foster and Plannery are thoroughly in favor of liberalizing the rules of the House and are opposed to Canonism.

Although in the decisive vote to remove Speaker Cannon from the rules committee they voted on opposite sides, the News has no doubt that both gentlemen can fully maintain their respective positions.

Mr. Plannery, while steadily voting to support the speaker in his rulings, evidently decided when the original question—the Norris resolution—came up that the shortest cut to get the desired result was to vote with the insurgents, although the News imagines that any movement outside of regular Republicanism was much to his dislike. His judgment in the matter undoubtedly meets the approval of his constituents.

Mr. Foster, on the other hand, it appeared, deemed it better to wait a little longer if necessary and get the same result within strict party lines. We hardly think that such a Republican stronghold as Vermont will condemn him for that decision, although many may regret that he did not join Mr. Plannery in the decisive vote.

Mr. Foster had the courage to stand up recently and tell Speaker Cannon just where he stood in reference to the latter's candidacy for re-election. While the News has no call to defend Mr. Foster, even if any defense is necessary, it is bound to say in all fairness that the insinuation in some quarters to the effect that he was influenced to support the speaker because a chairmanship was pending is altogether unwarranted. The speaker already knew Mr. Foster's position towards him. The Vermont congressman was the ranking member of the committee on foreign affairs, his colleagues recognized that he was particularly well fitted to fill the position and under these circumstances there was little or no question about his appointment.

Speaker Cannon, even in his own interests could not and would not, especially at this time, awaken such a storm of criticism as would have followed the turning down of Foster—Northfield News.

Vermont Banks and Public.

One of the very commendable official acts of Bank Commissioner Frank C. Williams, of Newport, is the institution of a series of annual reports to be made to him by the various banks in Vermont. One of these, the most comprehensive, is a special report of the treasurer and examining committee of each bank on the condition of their institution at the close of business each year, and such a date, for instance, a report that in some respects suggests the return of the annual bank examiners to be made to him by the various banks in Vermont. If All Housekeepers Knew the Advantages of the Crawford Ranges few others would be sold

In the saving of time, trouble and labor and in superior cooking ability, no other range can compare with them.

The Single Damper (patented) is the only perfect fire and oven control; one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," and the range does the rest.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. One Hod for ashes, instead of the old, clumsy ash pan; the other Hod for coal.

The Oven with its cup-joint flues is heated all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots."

The Patented Grates save trouble and money.

Auxiliary Gas Ranges at the end or above the range, if desired.
